

BIOGRAPHY

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT CORNELIUS M. YOUNG

CMSgt Cornelius M. Young serves as the Superintendent of the 383rd Training Squadron, 59th Training Group, Joint Base San Antonio-Ft Sam Houston, Texas. As the Superintendent he serves as the advisor to the squadron commander on all issues regarding mission effectiveness, human relations, readiness and morale of 135 personnel in the instruction of 3,750 students across four flights with 20 Air Force Specialty Code covering advanced and supplemental Enlisted and Officer courses. He works with Army and Navy medical services to provide a medically ready forces in both peacetime and wartime. Chief Young leads day-to-day operations, overseeing the enlisted training program and coordinates with the Air Force Medical Operations Agency, Enlisted Functional Managers and HQ USAF/SG on enlisted issues. Chief Young also provides oversight of enlisted education and training, unit fitness, evaluation, and awards programs. As a Group Executive Staff member he participates in strategic programming, budget formulation and business plan execution.

CMSgt Young joined the Air Force in 1996 as an Aircraft Armament System Apprentice and retrained as an Aerospace Medical Services Technician in 2000. Over his career, he has worked in all arenas of a medical treatment facility to include Family Practice, Labor & Delivery, Flight Medicine, Pediatrics, and in Command Support roles just to name a few. Prior to his current position, CMSgt Young served as a Fellow at the Department of State working in the Bureau of Population, Refugee and Migration (PRM). In that role he was tasked directly by the Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force to spearhead the Joint Leader Development Program (JLDP) designed to groom the professional competencies required of high performing Senior Enlisted Leaders (SELs), in response to the National Defense Strategy mandate to build strategic, well rounded leaders for Joint Force Next. This first iteration of the JLDP supported the accomplishment of these goals through formal education, senior staff interaction, mentorship, introduction to new concepts and technologies as well as exposure to non-governmental and inter-governmental organizations.
